As humanity approaches the 3rd millennium, the sustainability of our present way of life becomes more and more questionable. New paradigms for the long-term coevolution of nature and civilization are urgently needed in order to avoid intolerable and irreversible modifications of our planetary environment. Earth System Analysis is a new scientific enterprise that tries to perceive the earth as a whole, a unique system which is to be analyzed with methods ranging from nonlinear dynamics to macroeconomic modelling. This book, resulting from an international symposium organized by the Potsdam Institute, has 2 aims: first, to integrate contributions from leading researchers and scholars from around the world to provide a multifaceted perspective of what Earth System Analysis is all about, and second, to outline the scope of the scientific challenge and elaborate the general formalism for a well-defined transdisciplinary discourse on this most fascinating issue. This book examines urban experience from the vantage point of the global South. Drawing upon narratives coming from three key axes—communities, neighbourhoods, and market places—it lays bare the specificities of urban experience in contemporary Surat. It discusses a host of issues, including the ambiguity of urban experience, its uncomfortable ties with frames of the capital, and the politics of urban belonging that operate at multiple levels, shaping the contours of urban society. Musing on the subjectivities pertaining to the social and the spatial in a milieu of a fast-transforming urban landscape of Surat, Gujarat, the book is an exploration of how people perceive and associate with their surroundings, how they aspire, how they stigmatise others, the relation between the city and its migrants and castes, and at a broader level, between the capital and the city. An important contribution to the study of cities, the volume sheds light on how urban experience can be approached as a socially and spatially embedded concept. It will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of social history, urban sociology, urban studies, global South, and South Asia. This book contains a selection of refereed papers presented at the “International Conference on Operations Research (OR 2013)” which took place at Erasmus University Rotterdam September 3-6, 2013. The conference was jointly organized by the German and the Dutch OR Society. More than 800 scientists and students from over 50 countries attended OR 2013 and presented more than 600 papers in parallel topical streams, as well as special award sessions. The theme of the conference and its proceedings is "Impact on People, Business and Society". • 10 sets of complete solutions to the challenging examination questions • full and complete mark schemes and exam reports are included for the candidate to review his / her answers • best used just before taking the actual examination • complete edition eBook available

The papers in this collection focus on linguistic detail, not merely abstract discussions of a theoretical nature. It is suitable for scholars and students interested in the discipline of semantics-pragmatics. Each chapter integrates semantic and pragmatic facts into a single theory and finds an adequate division of theoretical labour, in an attempt to design and corroborate an elegant account of meaning and use that would be compatible with other aspects of human behaviour. This volume brings together novel analyses of verbal plurality and distributivity. The contributions draw on a wide range of new empirical data from languages as diverse as Arabic, Cusco Quechua, European Portuguese, Hausa, Karitiana, Modern Hebrew and Russian. The introductory chapter gives an overview of the central issues that underlie much recent research on the semantics of event plurality. The papers on verbal plurality explore the interaction between verbal plurality and plural arguments in Arabic and European Portuguese, the semantics of additive particles in Modern Hebrew, the semantics of a range of pluractional markers in Cusco Quechua and the morphological variability of pluractional markers cross-linguistically. The papers on distributivity examine the syntax and semantics of reduplicated numerals in Karitiana and adnominal distributive markers. This volume will be of interest to researchers and students in syntax, formal semantics, and language typology. This book constitutes the proceedings of the 8th International Conference on Rigorous State-Based Methods, ABZ 2021, which was planned to take place in Ulm, Germany, during June 6-11, 2021. The conference changed to an online format due to the COVID-19 pandemic. The 6 full and 8 short papers included in this volume were carefully reviewed and selected from 18 submissions. The proceedings also include 3 PhD symposium contributions. They deal with state-based and machine-based formal methods, mainly Abstract State Machines (ASM), Alloy, B, TLA+, VDM, and Z. A series of titles written to cover the complete Cambridge IGCSE Mathematics (0580) syllabus and endorsed by Cambridge International Examinations. This lively textbook, written by an experienced author and teacher, delivers comprehensive coverage of the IGCSE Mathematics syllabus for both Core and Extended courses. Offering a wealth of questions, supported by worked examples and diagrams, with hints and tips along the way to reinforce skills and guide learning. The dynamic and quality text, endorsed by Cambridge International Examinations, has been made available in print and e-book formats. Each Practice Set in the book contains sections on Child Development & Pedagogy, English, Hindi, Mathematics and Science. The question papers have been set very diligently so as to give a real-feel of the actual TET. The book is also useful for other State TETs - UPTET, Rajasthan TET, Haryana TET, Bihar TET, Uttarakhand TET etc. This book constitutes the refereed proceedings of the First European Conference on Research and Advanced Technology for Digital Libraries held in Pisa, Italy, in September 1997. The volume presents 23 revised full papers selected from 77 submissions. Also included are two invited contributions. The papers are organized in topical sections on supporting user interfaces, metadata, information retrieval, DL architectures, multilingual information retrieval, structured documents, and case studies.

Cascading Style Sheets (CSS) by Example will allow readers to learn the fundamentals of CSS by providing a teaching progression that takes them through small, gradual steps. It provides examples using CSS in "real world" scenarios. Cascading Style Sheets (CSS) by Example follows a logical, linear teaching progression that enables the reader to learn the fundamentals of CSS to utilize more control over the appearance and styling of Web pages. This book provides accessible and practical examples not found in existing CSS titles and provides information needed for those who want to move beyond their HTML skills for Web development and design. This text is about the use of mathematically based techniques for specifying software systems and is designed for computer science or software engineering students studying an introductory course in formal specification. The text focuses on the Z notation. The level of maths required to profit from this text is not very high—the emphasis is on the applications rather than the math itself. Both established and emergent business rely heavily on data, chiefly those that wish to become game changers. The current biggest source of data is the Web, where there is a large amount of sparse data. The Web, where there is a large amount of sparse data. To realise this vision, it is required that the resources in different data sources that refer to the same real-world entities must be linked which is the key factor for such a unified view. Link discovery is a trending task that aims at finding link rules that specify whether these links must be established or not. Currently there are many proposals in the literature to produce these links, especially based on meta-heuristics. Unfortunately creating proposals based on meta-heuristics is not a trivial task, which has led to a lack of comparison between some well-established proposals. On the other hand, it has been proved that these link rules fall short in cases in which resources that refer to different real-world entities are very similar or vice versa. In this dissertation, we introduce several proposals to address the previous lacks in the literature. On the one hand we, introduce Eva4LD, , which is a generic framework to build generic programming proposals for link discovery; which are a kind of meta-heuristics proposals. Furthermore, our framework allows to implement many proposals in the literature and compare their results fairly. On the other hand, we introduce Teide, which applies effectively the link rules increasing significantly their precision without dropping their recall significantly. Unfortunately, Teide does not learn link rules, and applying all the provided link rules is computationally expensive. Due to this reason we introduce Sorbas, which learns what we call contextual link rules. This a Full list of our latest courses and Publications at BEST price for my students!
