Dysbaric Osteonecrosis in Divers Sep 24 2020 The Naval Submarine Medical Research Laboratory is conducting a radiological survey to determine the prevalence of dysbaric osteonecrosis in U.S. Navy

Divers and to develop epidemiological data related to those aspects of the hyperbaric environment that contribute to the ultimate occurrence of the lesions. Twelve juxta-articular lesions and nine head, neck or shaft lesions have been identified in the extremities of fifteen divers who are radiologically positive cases of dysbaric osteonecrosis among 611 non-randomly selected divers surveyed. While the number of positive cases is too small to draw statistically reliable conclusions, certain trends are evident. Lesions were most common in the shoulders and in older divers. Saturation divers and all other helium divers had almost the same percentage of positive cases but air divers had a slightly lower percentage than either group. Data derived from an enlarging survey population should provide additional insight into the epidemiology of the condition

Towards Reengineering the United States Navy Enlisted Manpower and Personnel Systems - A Data Warehouse Approach Jul 03 2021 Historically, stove piped information systems have been developed to meet the needs of individual departments or users. Over time, attempts to increase the usefulness of these systems often involved adding layers of additional programming and data structures, resulting in complex and difficult to maintain legacy-based systems. The United States Navy enlisted personnel and manpower database system epitomizes this problem. The current system consists of several mainframe systems and a multitude of front-end systems that often require personnel managers to perform manual data extraction to execute routine activities. To illustrate the problem; we focus on Navy Enlisted Classification (NEC) reutilization, a critical aspect of the personnel assignment process. First, we present a series of contemporary database topics that form the basis for solving the problems associated with file-based legacy databases. Second, we provide details of the make-up and problems associated with the current system. Third, we develop a prototype relational data mart to prove the value of a data warehouse/data mart driven relational system. Fourth, using the prototype relational data mart as a source system, we use a contemporary OLAP application to prove the effectiveness of using a multidimensional data tool to analyze NEC reutilization. Finally, we discuss issues involving data quality and their impact on a data warehouse solution to integrating legacy systems.

2023 PURPOSE 1. The Navy Enlisted Classification (NEC) system, of which the NEC coding system is a part, supplements the enlisted rating structure in identifying personnel on active or inactive duty and billets in manpower authorizations. NEC codes identify a non-rating wide skill, knowledge, aptitude, or qualification that must be documented to identify both people and billets for management purposes. Additionally, an NEC can be used to identify special circumstances or situations with approval via the NEOCS process. 2. The NEC coding system facilitates management control over enlisted skills by identifying billets and personnel and enhancing efficient use of personnel in distribution and detailing. In cases where NECs reflect special training, inventories of coded billets and coded personnel are also the basis for planning and controlling input of personnel into formal courses that earn NECs...
